Football season ends with a radiant Suz

Homecoming 1970. A time for frayed tempers. A time for unmet deadlines. A time for crepe paper, chicken wire, and rotten eggs. A time for painting "71" on bridges. A time for togetherness, for class spirit, and for belonging to a purpose.

The class of '71 finally did it, they won the float competition. Hallelujah! The Senior float entitled "Looks like we're gonna dunk 'em, donut?" prevailed over "Mustangs weren't left defenseless" by the Juniors, "Send 'em into orbit" by the Sophomores, and "Highjack 'em" by the Freshmen.

The Mustangs had not played a winning season, but were not defeated on Homecoming. They ended the season by tying the game with the Purple Flyers, 14-14. Fans were loyal to Coach Livezey and his crew to the end

Student Life

Eight hundred individuals and most of them without distinction. Only a few could be stars; but it was the mass, maybe the unknown, that made Fountain Central. What did we think about? About going home, about girls (or boys), about the test we hadn't studied for. What did we do? We threw snowballs in the band room. Studied? Well, sometimes we did that too. Most of all we plotted, and planned, and waited for summer to arrive.

Sometimes we were flying high, and sometimes we were shot down so fast we didn't know what hit us. Maybe it was a teacher we didn't like, a lost ball game, or an end to a relationship that knocked us down; but however trivial it might seem tomorrow, for the moment it hurt. All of these moments made up student life.

There were so many people and so few understood their lives. There was no way to reach them. Each had to find himself in his own way.

Marianne Gunn seems to be displaying her artistic ability in the 7th grade art class.

Caught in the act, someone receives a stern warning from Mr. Brock

Stressing a point, Bob Larson explains his book to Paula Hesler and Susan Young

"They're off through the halls of F C !" This seems to be the cry as the last bell rings

Students went to convocations—not because we really wanted to see a Bob Larson or a Vic Hyde—mainly because we didn't want to go to class. We wanted a break, a chance to chew gum, whisper, clap, and let off steam. Sometimes we surprised ourselves by actually enjoying a convocation

Students were just students. We did not have to act dignified as teachers did. Students ran to lunch not because we were hungry and wanted to eat—because we didn't want to be the last person down to the cafeteria. Once you were caught in the surge of traffic there was no way to stop. It was run or be trampled. Undignified? Sure, but students could only be students for so short a time

be a difficult job for Denise Pittsford.

The fact she is a member of this group.

People who weren't aware of all student life might say it was the apple core they saw in the hall or the student arrested for car theft. Some might talk about how our school was going to the dogs, but we know better. That single student troublemaker was no more indicative of FC than the local drunk is of the whole community.

Sometimes we felt like climbing the walls to get out, and we were scared to death of being pushed into a world of income taxes and armies. It all seemed hopeless. So much to do, so little time, so many people; and at moments we disliked FC and what she stood for. At other times we were so proud of her we could have burst.

Student life—ball games, proms, chamber parties, fits of crying and hysterical laughter, lunch lines, Spring show, and forged passes. 1971—a time for living our own lives.

FC shows respect, honor, and appreciation

Outstanding student and faculty leadership in clubs, subjects, and activities are marked each year by the awards convocation. This year's convocation was one of mixed feelings. It was a time for emotions—surprise, gratitude, self-esteem, pride, sadness being felt as each honored person received his well-deserved award.

The main awards for 1970-1971 were presented as follows: DAR JR. CITIZENSHIP—K. Anderson, G. Nehrig, T. Sample, M. Parrett; DAR HISTORY—D. Janeway; DAR GOOD CITIZEN—D. Clark; PEP CLUB—T. Brown; GAA—K. J. Majors; OFFICE ASSISTANTS—N. Bell, P. Holt; SCIENCE—J. Madigan; SCIENCE FAIR—D. Arrigo, S. Woolwine, K. Bever; ART—P. Galloway; ENGLISH—C. Person, S. Young; BAND—P. Holt, K. J. Majors, D. Forkner; BAND SERVICE—D. Britton, J. Downs; JOURNALISM—B. Van Hook; INDUSTRIAL ARTS—A. Ashwill, C. Jones, D. Meuser; SUNSHINE—B. Grubb; YEARBOOK—J. Madigan, L. Ward; JR. HISTORICAL—G. Boggs, J. Quirk; DRAMA—C. Person; FHA—J. Smith; CRISCO—K. Wrede; BETTY CROCKER—C. Snyder; LETTERMAN—A. Gooding; LEGION PATRIOTISM—T. Parker; B & PW—J. Coffing; SALUTATORIAN—P. Holt; VALEDICTORIAN—M. ## "Age of Aquarius" represents Juniors

For many, Prom was the first time to formally dress for a social occasion. For the Juniors, it was even more. It was their chance to express, to plan, and to have fun building something together as a class. For the Seniors, it was a time to sit back and enjoy the work of the Juniors.

The Juniors expressed themselves through "The Age of Aquarius." It began with a dinner catered by the Beef House and continued with the Grand March from a blue and lavender cafe to a world of glowing planets and bright stars. Amid fountains and colorful topiary trees, couples laughed and romantically danced under dim lights.

Later, couples hurried home to change clothes before returning to a "Country and Western" mood at the Post-Prom. It was everything from winning a baby duck to spook houses, cartoons, and "pick a pocket." The laughter and excitement continued until the last prize was given and the confetti was thrown. The kids then went their own way: some to Turkey Run, some to breakfast, some to find boxes for ducks, and some went home PROM—A great big thanks to the Juniors!

"Age of Aquarius" is gracefully played by the talented Cindy Ponder. The beautiful and romantic dinner music helps to digest the food.

Solemnly leading the Grand March, Gary Boggs and Connie Person head the procession.

both nights of performances

Accompanied by the band in the background, Suzi Allen expresses her talent in music as she plays the beautiful theme from "Love Story."

A time for endless planning and frustration, for Jim Madigan sitting in a fluorescent purple bathtub singing "Rubber Duckie," for the "cultural" side of Fountain Central—a dramatic ballet by some of the more talented (?) seniors, and for teenage sighs and hysterical girls fainting on stage.

Two weeks of night rehearsal went into making this year's Spring Show what it was. The band performed medleys from Bacharach and David and featured Suzi Allen on "Love Story," as well as three numbers by the stage band. The chorus performed the songs from "Bye, Bye, Birdie"—everything from Kenna Jean Majors scolding David Fuller for leading her on for eight years to Doug Forkner (complete with sideburns, guitar, and leather jacket) groaning "you gotta be sincere," while the entire chorus ecstatically fainted at his feet. The chorus had its share of problems: injured star (Dianne Knowles), microphones that went out at crucial moments, an accompanist with swollen glands, and a slightly tardy narrator. But Friday night, April 23, came in spite of everything as Mr. Marquess came striding across the cafetorium in front of a capacity crowd to open the show with "It's Not Unusual." The lights dimmed, the audience quieted, and past rehearsal succumbed into a climaxing performance. Talents of band and chorus combined splendidly to put the icing on the cake!

FC senior band and dance band

Flutes, busses, contest medals, early morning engagements, squeaky horns, and Mr. Marquess—that was Sr. band. They were busy at every football and basketball game, at Winter Concert, and at Spring Show. Invitations came from others, too. Our Marching Mustangs played in the ISU Homecoming Parade, an Indiana Pacers game, and took a two-day tour to New Prairie High School. They did a wonderful job and often surprised themselves and Mr. Marquess. Twenty-one band members formed the dance band. They did exceptionally well, and we were all proud of them. Commencement saw the band playing (without the talents of the seniors, but with the fresh techniques of the freshmen who were getting their first taste of Senior band) sad, familiar farewell songs.

Symbol clashes, bass drums, and musical talents banded together to add a note of excitement to our lives

Seventh Grade Band brought five groups of seventh graders together for the first time. It gave students who would be together for six more years their first common interest. Between throwing paperwads at Mr. Marquess and other antics, they learned to play together and gave two concerts. They became a Seventh Grade Band, instead of five sixth grade groups.

Eighth and ninth graders made up the Freshman Band. They had been together longer and had been around a little more. Performances were a Junior High concert in February and a contest in April, which meant stiff competition from larger schools. To make money, they successfully sold Texas oranges and grapefruit. Finally, in May, after three years of band, the freshmen left it all behind and joined the Senior Band at Commencement.

Trying to find the sour note, Mr. Marquess scans the music before beginning the song again

7th, 8th, and 9th grade

groups display eager young talent in music

It all started in the sixth grade when Mrs. Boggs visited the grade schools to audition new voices. The prospects were nervous and scared, but they were eager to begin. Young voices had to be blended into one group. They had to learn to breathe, enunciate, and sing "lingering longingly" up the scale. Performance at a concert in February and caroling at Christmas were proof of their learning.

Where did the seventh graders go from Seventh Grade Chorus? They joined Freshman Chorus. It consisted of 90 eighth graders and freshmen that sang four parts instead of three, but the exercises were the same. They performed at a concert in February. In May, the freshmen made their debut in Senior High Chorus at Baccalaureate.

During the Jr. High Concert, the Freshman Choir sings as Mrs. Boggs has instructed them.

Hard work pays off for FC

Senior Chorus was what the Seventh Grade and Freshman Choruses were all about. They taught the basics, but in Senior Chorus members got a chance to put their experience and efforts to work. The exercises were the same the ones that would have looked and sounded so silly to anyone who did not understand a chorus and its director. However, the work showed in winter concert, at Choral Festival, and in solo and ensemble contest where a girls' trio was awarded a first division rating at I.S.U. The highlight of the year, though, was Spring Show. This year it was "Bye, Bye, Birdie" that the chorus did their "thing" with

There was more to Spring Show than just singing. There was a chance to dance, act, and coordinate endless hours, props, and voices. Spring Show was a difficult job but was well worth the effort. Senior Chorus ended its year with a huge success.

SC represents student body

Students were given the privilege of being elected by their own classes to sit on the council. They belonged. Even the seventh graders got a taste of "high school" living as members. Student Council was meant to represent the student body it suggested.

It stood for Fountain Central and was responsible for many of the activities we enjoyed such as Homecoming, Christmas Ball, and class elections. The council acted in additional capacities by sending Christmas cards to our servicemen and keeping the plaque honoring our servicemen up-to-date.

The Student Council? It was the students' voice in the school and a service club. It was for us.

NHS warmly extends friendship

National Honor Society—Service, Scholarship, Leadership, and Character. That is what NHS, a nationwide honorary club for the outstanding, represented through its members.

Membership in NHS not only gave people an excuse to leave homeroom, but also gave them a chance to go to Indianapolis in the spring for dinner and a movie. Seriously, the NHS was a proud moment for those admitted to this respected organization.

NHS, however, did not function only for itself. It extended warmth to others also. By arranging seasonal displays in the entrance hall, providing convocations, and taking flowers to the County Home, it gave service beyond school activities. NHS kept going because the members kept giving!

Bubbling cauldrons,  $KI_2$ , and Chicago in the spring. Chemistry, physics, and biology students made up Science Club. You didn't have to be a great chemist to enjoy it. They learned about everything from pollution to chemical make-up (Did you know yours is the same as Paul Newman's?). Spring was a time to visit Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry. Besides having a lot of fun with Mr. Chemistry himself, better known as Mr. Ron Colson, they learned a lot.

Testing water for its pollutants, Homer Faucett and Kenon Gray set up the distilling equipment.

Science trips are fun but tiring. Caught napping are Curt Hoagland and Susan Young.

JHS erects historical marker

Fountain Central's Junior Historical Society had a busy year between state conventions and programs. FC had always been well represented at State Conventions, so there was a tradition to uphold. The Spring Heritage Festival displayed local dealers' antiques and gave JHS a chance to turn back the clock to grandmother's day with the smell of homemade candy and baked bread. The Festival came to a climax with a program illustrating the freedom of choice in America.

JHS helped to teach our local history (the kind you couldn't find in history books). The community was made aware of a historic landmark when JHS erected a marker on US 41 marking the boyhood home of US Representative and Senator Daniel W. Vorhees.

Ghosts of Hill House haunt Fountain Central

Ghosts, mediums, and things that go bump in the night. "The Haunting of Hillhouse," the spring play based on the book by Shirley Jackson, had all of these. Those who saw the play enjoyed it, but their enjoyment could never match the enthusiasm and fun that the entire cast, directors, and prop men had. They had funny experiences, too, as when the car wrecked when the wind should have blown; or when they went out to dinner at the Beef House. Sometimes rehearsal went badly; but when the time came for the curtain to go up, the lights to brighten, and the young actors and actresses saw an audience waiting to be entertained, they threw all their being into their parts (thanks to Mrs. Boling) and truly haunted the auditorium.

FC, represented by Nancy Janeway, again won the Soil and Water Speech Contest. Kathy Gray competed in the annual Rotary Club Contest as one of many activities performed by members of the Speech and Drama Club.

Freda Fargo and friends

The Pony Express rode again this year, thanks to the journalism class under Mrs. Jones' supervision. Unless you were a member of the class you really could not understand the effort and trials that went into making a school paper. Deadline became an awesome word. Through school news, features, and Freda Fargo, the Pony Express gave interested readers a chance to "let off steam" on important issues.

The entire school could participate in the work of one extremely busy class to create a school newspaper

The highlight of the year's work was the senior issue a memory issue to cherish that recognized and paid tribute to the 1971 graduates.

Scrutinizing carefully, Arlene Campbell watches as Brenda Van Hook adds finishing touches

Student photography outstanding feature

Draw. Write. OOPS! Redraw. Rewrite. And so went the pattern of producing the 1971 yearbook. If a student was not a member of the Yearbook Staff, he had no way of knowing what difficult and relentless work it was. But in the end, the finished product was well worth the effort.

All candid photography, developing, and printing this year was done by Jim Madigan, assisted by David Black. For the first time, candid shots were not all posed. This made available more pictures to choose from. The opening section was lengthened by using the theme "A Time To." A different color and type of paper stock, along with extensive use of second color and half-tones, was emphasized.

Time? There was never enough of it. "Deadline" became an unending word combining tired faces and midnight snacks. Fun times, unique times became lost times . . . unless they achieved immortality between the covers of a book. Some said the '71 yearbook could make time stand still. It could.

A new closed circuit TV system is put to use by Jim Harvey and Tom Merrill Zoning in on the football field, Gary Sample follows the band through practice.

You might say we had a "Fuller" Audio-Visual Department this year. With two new Kodak projectors, two stereo record players, three electric projection tables, and two tape players, we could have almost started our own Candid Camera! Most important of all was a new video tape recorder that was like having a miniature TV studio all our own. The students were proud of it and took care of the films that made health and biology more interesting. Three cheers for the AV Department - they capably projected themselves.

Tutors learn from teaching other students

Tutoring? It was fun (if you had a student who brought you chocolate covered peanuts every day—even a Ding Dong would do)! Tutors sometimes found themselves not knowing much more than the students, so everyone ended up learning something, even if it wasn't about math, or English. The tutor got a chance to learn about people and to use a teaching ability that might later shape his life. It was fun. Fun to be friends. Fun to teach. Fun to learn. Tutors? Yeah, they learned too.

Promoting interest in business was the purpose of the business club. It gave students who were not interested in a four-year college a chance to discover other training and technical schools. Whether you were interested in being a secretary or a computer programmer, vocational schools offered a wide variety of choices.

During the year the club again sold merchandise from the Tom Wat company in order to finance an all-day trip to Indianapolis to visit Indiana Central Business College and Porter Business College. A later activity was the publication and sale of a student directory. The high school students at FC enjoyed having their own personal "little black book."

High salesman, Andy Millikan, carefully inspects business club merchandise to be sold.

Book Fair was great success

Library club was strictly for librarians. Running the library was no easy business, and library club was designed to coordinate jobs and get things done faster. They evaluated books (what ones to buy and where to buy them), planned a book fair in order to raise money, and in April they toured R.R. Donnelly and Sons publishing plant in Crawfordsville.

During the year the members were kept busy binding back issues of magazines to make it less difficult for students needing resource material. The last project of the year was the successful sale of used paperbacks that had been donated to the school.

Books are entertaining for some, but Sharon Summers finds them to be a lot of hard work.

SSS contributes money to causes

Native to Indiana only and strictly a service club—that is Sunshine Society. It had one of the largest club memberships in the school, which proves that students wanted to do their share to help others. Sunshiners sold candy and stationery, with the proceeds going to worthy causes. Money was sent to a Vietnamese child through the Christian Children's Association. The annual contribution to the Riley Hospital in Indianapolis was made to help build a new "Sunshine Room" at the hospital. Christmas was made a happier time for the children at the Shawnee Home when candy- and toy-filled stockings and games were given by Santa Sunshiners. In April, an Ideal Ladies' Tea was held for outstanding women in the community.

Serving the entire school punch and cookies at the Christmas Tea was only one of the many activities sponsored by the FHA. The children at the Danville Children's Home were entertained with a party, and visits to hospitals and conventions were made.

The students were made aware of members' work through an FHA week. Diana Harshbarger appeared on television to kick off the week's activities. Gifts of cookies were enjoyed by teachers and cooks. The honor of FHA Baby was bestowed upon the first baby born in the FC school area during the week. To pay for its activities, the FHA had bake sales and sold cookbooks.

Hailing the crowd are FHA officers, Arlene Campbell, Lucinda Schulthes, and Brenda Van Hook.

team to great season

Tired throats and togetherness—that was FC's pep club. Getting each one seated in his blue shirt at the right time and in the right place, struggling to coordinate blocks and cards, trying to outyell a gym full of seven hostile schools, and getting along among ourselves was a job in itself. The team didn't always win, but the pep club had a good time. It was fun having something to feel proud of and being able to shout across a crowded gym. It was fun to belong and great to win. After all the basketball games, bake sales, notebook sales, and cushion sales were over; and when the shirts were ironed and put away, it was fun to know the pep club might have helped a little to back our team. Pep club gave the team the spirit and determination that they needed, when they needed it most.

With much despair, Susan McKee and Kenna Majors hopefully cheer at their last sectional

Jr. FHA learn details for homemaking

Learning is easiest when you are young. Jr. FHA proved this by learning about homemaking at an early age. It was FC's only club for junior high girls, and it gave them a rare taste of club responsibility.

They put on style shows, had panel discussions with their mothers, entertained at a Daddy Date night, had their first Homecoming parade float, and served the Junior-Senior prom and the Christmas Ball. This may seem like a lot of serving; but when it was all over, they realized they had gladly included a successful Christmas Tea. A clean-up campaign with posters and efforts from the student body was staged early in the school year. Jr. FHA members gained a greater understanding of homemaking and organization.

FFA farms for fun and for profit

The Future Farmers of America, an organization on the move. FFA kept pace with the changing farm scene and took an active part in school life.

The FFA boys had a plot. Yes, they literally had a plot of ground where they grew corn, beans, and alfalfa for experience and profit. Individual future farmers were also allowed to go to soil, livestock, and crop judging contests in the spring.

If you had looked behind the school one day, you would have seen what the future tillers of the ground were up to. Because of this practical experience, they will someday feed the whole world. With their hands in the pockets of those blue and gold jackets, lettermen were just a little above the crowd for a while. Those thirty-six lettermen were the high school heroes. They helped make or break the school's reputation. Sports were important at Fountain Central, and if our lettermen wanted to act a little cocky—not conceited, just cocky—that was OK, because they worked hard to earn those jackets and sweaters. The Lettermen's Club sponsored dances in order to have a dinner at the Redwood Inn in the spring. Mostly, they just enjoyed the honor of belonging to this organization and were deserving of the privilege to represent our school.

GAA stays fit by running track

The Girl's Athletic Association was an association for athletic girls. That makes sense! It was for girls who wanted to have more athletic competition than they could get in gym class. They wanted to run, jump, play ball, and exert themselves. They liked being in shape—they liked it enough to make it an after-school activity. The GAA went bowling, had track meets, and the girls had a chance to earn points to get a blazer. The GAA was always striking out in new directions; which just goes to show, you can't pin down a Mustang

Season hindered by Coach

Fountain Central's varsity basketball team suffered the misfortune of having head coach Jim Robinson out for the majority of the season with hepatitis. Reserve coach Max Dean took over the reins of the varsity while Robinson was sidelined. The highlight of the year was against Rockville when the Mustangs set a new school scoring record of 105 points. The Mustangs' conference record of 6—2 was good for second place in the conference.

Mark Kerns, elected to the second team of the Wabash River Conference, and Ron Flory shared the Most Valuable Player award. Most Improved Player went to Alan Dobbs. Chosen as co-captains were Jeff Quirk and Clark Hickman. The recipient of the Sportsmanship Blanket this year was Steve Verhey.

Going in for a lay-up for the Mustangs, Clark Hickman loses his grip on the basketball.

FC emerges victorious

Fountain Central's B-team had an outstanding season this year, finishing with an excellent 15—5 record and also winning the B-team tourney. This year's sophomores compose one of the most promising squads ever produced at FC. They have a very balanced squad, all showing good potential which should pay off in helping FC the next two years on the hardwood court.

This year's team was led by 6'5" Robert Gerard who won the OOPS trophy, an award designated by Coach Dean to the outstanding player of the year based on actual game performances. The smallest man on the team, Randy Allen, led in assists, steals, field goal percentage, and free throw percentage. The leading scorer was Scott King with an average of 6.8 points per game. This indicates that no one player dominated action. These boys should be a tough team to reckon with in the future if they continue with their strong team play and enthusiasm.

Looking confident in his Mustang's ability, Coach Dean gives advice to the B-team.

This year's Freshmen will definitely play a major part in FC's basketball program as they have shown much hustle and potential in their three years at Fountain Central.

Eighth grade gains experience

The coach of the eighth grade this year was Mr. Jan Hesser. They showed promise and improvement over the 7th grade year. The squad showed balance as no one player overshadowed the others. The team showed that they can play basketball if they do what they are capable of and if they stress teamwork. If they continue to work hard, they will definitely be a part of FC's future basketball program.

The team, led by Donald Bell, demonstrated scoring power, teamwork, and good basketball desire. This talented group of athletes should continue their winning ways through next year.

Mistakes and inconsistency

New head football coach, Fred Livezey, experienced a disappointing season compiling a 1-8-1 record.

Early in the season the Mustangs showed promise in games with North Vermillion and Ladoga. However, the team was hobbled with injuries and misfortune. Mental mistakes and inconsistency hurt the Mustangs all year. Though few sweet hours of victory were witnessed, the team kept plugging along to tie the homecoming game.

The team was headed by captains Larry Amstutz and Gary Ellis. Defensive end, Terry Parker, received all-conference honorable mention.

Next year's outlook is brighter, having thirteen returning lettermen; namely, Pat Jurss, Steve Harrison, Robert Gerard, Kevin Hart, John Dudley, Scott King, Gary Cox, Mark Kerns, G. A. Keeling, Alan Dobbs, John Hinton, Homer Faucett, and Greg Hetrick.

The Fountain Central Freshman football team gained valuable experience, although they failed to register a victory. The 29 Freshmen who participated showed great promise and teamwork throughout the entire season. The team was led by a promising kicker, Robert Grubb, and quarterback, Jay Dark. Both of these Freshmen did a great job this year playing the game. Many fans are looking toward next year.

Fountain Central's B-team started out the season with three straight losses, but improved steadily throughout the whole season and went on to win three of their last four games.

They defeated Attica by 52—6. This was the first time a FC football team had ever beaten an Attica gridiron team. Team work was the key to FC's success this season.

Varsity and Jr. High track have successful

This year's Varsity Track team continued Fountain Central's dominance in the Bi-County by winning it for the fourth consecutive year. Coach Livezey's squad was led by senior Jerry Booe who was the Most Valuable Player. He set records in the 100 and 220 yard dashes with times of 10.5 and 23.3 seconds respectively. Clark Hickman also bettered his record in the high jump with a leap of 6 feet. At the Sectional meet, Steve Verhey qualified for the Regional meet in the 2 mile event. Altogether, it was a good season for the Varsity Track team with a final record of 19 wins and 7 losses. In the conference FC ended its 1971 track season by obtaining fourth place.

The Junior High Track team did well this year. Their record was a 4-2, including winning the Bi-County. The 880 relay, consisting of Bill Roark, Garth Million, John Howard, and David Lyons set a new Jr. High record. New records were also set by Million in the high jump and 60 yard dash.

Fountain Central's cross country team has

The Cross Country team won the majority of their meets this year, but had bad luck at the bi-county and conference meets. FC tied for the bi-county with Covington, but was conceded 2nd place as Covington's 6th man beat our 6th man. Bad luck came also in the conference meet as they once again finished 2nd to Covington.

Disappointments were soothed by some individual accomplishments. Senior runner Gary Rice missed the school record of 9:51 by just one second. Number one runner Steve Verhey, who had won 24 meets in a row, suffered an ankle injury and never returned to top form. This brought to an end a string of 52 meets in a row in which an FC runner had finished first.

The outlook for next year is promising with Greg Ludlow and Kevin Keller returning to lead the team.

at Sectional game

This year's baseball team consisted of mainly underclassmen with only two seniors on the team. These seniors, Butch Corey and Allen Gooding, took the honor and responsibility of being the first co-captains.

Good weather until the end of the season made it possible for most of the games to be played on schedule. The FC Varsity baseball team finally ended its season with a record of 12-6. Butch Corey was voted by his fellow team members as the Most Valuable Player for the 1971 season.

The B-team also had a good season of experience for next year. They ended their season with a record of 4-2. During the entire season both Varsity and B-team tried their best to be selected for the Conference team that finalized the baseball season.

Golf Team ends with 7—4—1 record

Gaining more experience, Fountain Central's third year golf team expanded its number of meets and considerably improved its record. With the backing of Coach John Donovan, the golf team competed against seven schools, most of which are in the surrounding area, plus tough Terre Haute Wiley.

The team played its home meets at the Sky Valley Golf Course near Hillsboro. They also played such courses as Big Pine, Attica, Rockville, and Lebanon, where the sectional tourney was played. However, the Mustangs were unable to finish due to rain.

The 1971 team consisted of juniors Greg Hetrick, Jim Hershberger, and Ed Holt, plus sophomore—Pat Crane, and freshmen Joe Hershberger and Roger Fairchild. Still having underclassmen on the team, the future looks very bright. Valuable experience has been gained again this year and with lettermen Jim Hershberger, Greg Hetrick, Ed Holt, Pat Crane, and Joe Hershberger returning, next year promises to be an even better year for FC.

Speeches, plays, games, and pantomimes. Fun? Sure, especially if you loved to be a ham anyway and could get up in front of an entire class or an audience. No matter how outgoing you were, it was still a time for nervous stomachs and broken phrases.

Drama class gave students a chance to express their acting abilities. They learned new techniques of applying makeup and used the video-tape player for their own betterment. The class put on 3 one-act plays: The Death of a Hired Man, To Burn a Witch, and The Welcoming, which used both pantomime and dramatic acting ability.

All this was possible because of communication—language. Even if it was never used purposely, such words as Bonjour and Adios certainly sounded impressive to other students.

Most important was speaking our own language correctly. Verbs, participles, phrases, and clauses made up English. English was not merely eight parts of speech, but a way of communicating. A time for talking about literature and great authors such as Robert Burns, Mary Shelley, and John Steinbeck. A chance to get other ideas, and a time to discuss those ideas and to form new ideas of your own.

Social Sciences teach better way of life

History, social studies, sociology, psychology, government, and economics. What made the world go 'round, and who was responsible. In the social science courses students could get an insight into the past of our globe. Whether it was America, Europe, or South Africa, the students learned to understand the government, life in these places, and their inhabitants. Knowledge of the past can better shape the future.

The history teachers were an institution at FC. Mrs. Plunkett and her world history class did projects such as making things from the cave man days -hand axes, catapults, knives, and spears. They also staged a Greek tragedy that became a Greek comedy.

Social science wasn't all history. Sociology and psychology played an important part in learning about man. These courses helped students better understand others and themselves.

Business department buys new typewriters

Sometimes people think business courses are only for those students who can't carry an academic load, but they meant more than that. Business courses taught valuable skills. Even if a student didn't want to be a secretary, he still had to know how to fill out income taxes and keep records. Even the college student studying to be a scientist had to know how to type. Skills taught in the business courses sometimes had more relevance to our lives than  $F=EQ$ , and learning about business machines and skills helped with future jobs. Like agriculture and shop classes, business courses taught valuable technical skill.

New equipment purchased this year by the business department included six IBM Selectric typewriters.

Music and Art display new talent

They were the breaks that made a sometimes endless day seem shorter. They gave students a chance to show creativity and that something went on at FC besides sports. At art exhibits, contests, and band tours students had a chance to shine individually as well as in groups. Spring show topped it off with talent and hard work, bright lights, and proud parents. Although the cast, chorus, and band were tight nerved, they glowed with success.

With an art exhibit in the hall and FC's choir and band performing on stage, there was talent all around. Without music and art FC (the world) would have been a dull place.

Seventh graders, as Steve Harper demonstrates, reveal their talent when it comes to art.

As the chorus files into the audience, their faces express the seriousness of their song.

Guidance, Library, and AV have busy year

The library proved a place to look up everything from the recapitulation theory to whatever is going to be on at the local drive-in. The library gave students a chance to catch up on pleasure reading and to increase the library by having a book fair.

Vocational problems, college choices, personal problems, and scheduling difficulties—that was the guidance department. The counselors were always there when we needed their help.

A new video-tape player in the A-V department gave sports a chance to look at themselves in action.

AV boys enjoy helping Mr. Fuller with the new equipment purchased for their use.

Careful study of Senior grades is required of Mr. Boone as the year's end draws near.

Shop acquires new plastics oven

These classes gave the boys and girls who couldn't always excel in the classroom a chance to shine. Some students have no ability or inclination to be a doctor or teacher—shop and agricultural training gave them a direction. Working with their hands, with wood and metal, and with the soil, they could learn a valuable skill.

The vocational students could always be counted on to print school newspapers, basketball rosters, programs for school activities, books of passes, and all other forms that were used by the school. The department also gained a new electric oven which was used for working with plastic materials.

for future are developed

The home economics department tried something new this year—a boy's home economics class. Some of our basketball foes might have laughed if they had seen Mark Kerns sewing on a button or John Hinton cooking potato soup, but the boys learned some valuable skills. The boys took a field trip to Purdue to visit various buildings and ate dinner afterwards.

The girls learned, too. They toured a divorce court, shopped for wool material, visited a furniture store in Crawfordsville, visited the local food stores, and had style shows to display their sewing skills.

Both boys and girls cooked and sewed. A new set of self-cleaning ovens in the department made after-class clean up much easier for all classes.

Keeping in shape is goal of PE classes

Catch the ball! Make a basket! Run faster! That was the unending cry of the gym teachers. Phys. Ed. classes could be a trying experience for the uncoordinated, but new sports like golf and dance made it less necessary to be a Mickey Mantle or a Lew Alcindor to succeed. Mrs. Harry staged a style show to give the girls a preview of the exciting new fashions in clothes for the gym and locker room. ## Janitors and cooks keep busy with tasks

If anyone saw FC's students charging to lunch every day, he might have thought they were going to a fire. Maybe it was the new a la carte line that had everyone so excited. It gave the kids a choice—which was fine, if we didn't get knocked down in the mad rush or sent to the back of the line by Mr. Hart or Mr. Colson. Though Ding Dong wrappers and potato chip bags made more work for the janitors, the system worked out beautifully.

FC experienced misfortune early in the year when custodian Bob Claypool broke his leg, and Custodian Paul Oilar was greatly missed when he was hospitalized due to illness.

School expands to meet the growing needs

Functioning as the chief administrative body of Fountain Central, the School Board had the final word in vital matters pertinent to the functioning of a high school. Budgeting, construction of new facilities, and selection of personnel were matters concerning the Board and Superintendent.

As a school expands to meet the growing needs and wants of a student body, the job of its principal must grow to keep in step with progress. This has been the task of Principal Bob L. Brock. His sixth year at FC (third year as principal) has brought him the fulfillment of seeing FC's first seventh graders become graduates. While keeping FC in line, he was busy with school problems and extracurricular activities. Whether at a ballgame or in the hallowed halls, when Mr. Brock roared, they listened.

School principal, Mr. Bob Brock, carefully supervises all daily high school functions.

Coordinating the Southeast Fountain school system is the over-all job of Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Paul G. Ingersoll.

Seniors make their year. After all . .

SENIORS—THE CLASS OF 1971. Not extra special. No better or worse than any other class. Just Seniors! In ten years we will no longer be the fresh-faced, idealistic class that set out to change the world; but parents, businessmen, farmers -maybe even a drunk or a convict -still, just Seniors '71. A time for us.

A time for memories. Not just the trite, forget-me-not blues of graduation, but the deep-down, no-words-can express feelings of friends and favorite teachers and fun. A time for growing up and facing life and death. The death of Sid Bantz, the first one of us to make an empty place, shocked the class. He made the '71er's start thinking about things beyond Seniorhood—about what comes after. It was a time for sadness, yet we were young, and the year did progress.

Seniors—a class not feigning familyhood. Each individual as different as black and white, all with different friends and lives and ideas of fun. Different people with occasional disagreements—not enemies—just different, but still Seniors. We were a body, a whole, together as one. In that there was no difference.

SENIOR YEAR. A time for knowing all the hiding places when we were doing something we shouldn't, for sneaking bites of candy in class, for knowing what to say to which teacher, for being a professional brown-nose—after all, Seniors had had twelve years of practice! Seniors could get by with anything well, practically anything. Maybe that's because we had been around longer and knew all the tricks of the trade. Everyone knew the Seniors. Seventh graders looked up at us and thought they'd never be that old. We looked down at them and thought, "I certainly don't feel this old."

SENIOR YEAR. At last we were the Homecoming queens, the football stars, and the varsity cheerleaders. A time for discovering the pain that goes with the privileges. Six years at FC hadn't always made us as mature as we suddenly had to be. Then it wasn't nine months anymore, it was time for graduation. Everything had to be crammed into one year Senior year. It was a time for fun and time was running out. The small times had to be made into big times, and the times that were alright had to be saved for the times that weren't so good. Seniors made their year. After all . . . "It only took an outstretched hand."

1971 Graduates happily and sadly grasp

The month of May is a time for haunting the mailbox and hearing from relatives you never knew existed! A time for practicing Practicing PRAC-TICING! Moments of trying to struggle in ankle-length gowns while balancing on your head an awkward, huge cap with a tassel that swings and swings until you're seasick and then hits you in the eye; and keeping in step with someone who doesn't walk as you do.

It rained May 23, but it didn't dampen the spirits on that day. All through Baccalaureate we waited for Commencement. All through Commencement we waited for our diplomas. Afterwards, there was picture snapping and kissing of people you would probably never kiss again. Diplomas in hand, the old class cheer was shouted; and all the hugging, handshaking, laughing, and crying had begun. For many, this would be the last time we would see our fellow classmates. When we ran out in the rain to our celebrations, we had kissed 'ole Fountain Central good-bye. Juniors became Seniors, and Seniors became old Alumni. At last we had made it—all 117 of us.

Juniors look forward to Senior privileges

What did the Juniors do (besides pester the Seniors)? Only the sponsors Mr. Manning, Mr. Morrison, Mrs. Pogue, and Mrs. Majors knew. Most people thought their sole occupation was masterminding the prom, but the Junior year was more than that. For most it was the first chance to play varsity basketball, be a club officer, or take U.S. History under Mr. Hart. It was a time for belonging to high school as they never would again—being old enough to actually belong, but young enough not to feel pressured.

Sophomores proudly display

At times the transition from freshman to sophomore is greater than any other period in high school. Suddenly the sophomores were not the "greenies" anymore. There were class rings in the Charger style and driver's license! New freedoms—to drive, to date, to begin to make their presence felt at Fountain Central. It was their first year for Choral Festival and Spring Show. It was a year for getting ready to take over where the juniors left off. The sophomores were sponsored by Mr. John Donovan, Mr. Ron Colson, Mrs. Mary Johnson, Mrs. Lora Gail Jones, and Mr. Robert Pearson.

Freshmen begin transition

Freshmen were the "green" ones. Several changes took place to make things different for the freshmen. They were finally high schoolers. They belonged. They had four years ahead of them, all fresh and untouched, to try to decide their course in life. New activities entered their lives, such as floats at Homecoming, belonging to high school clubs, a choice of subjects; but also harder subjects, more pressures to excel, belong, and succeed. Freshmen found that prices must come with the privileges. They made the change from junior high to high school and came out on top.

They were sponsored by Mr. Jack Hart, Mr. Harry Linn, Mrs. Nadine Plunkett, and Mr. Ron Crawford.

Eighth grade no longer the youngest class

Stacking lockers for fun, talking about boyfriends, and having serious questions about subjects that mattered was the class of '75. They were shoved out of the youngest class into the role of eighth graders, but didn't complain. Now they (along with the older more "mature" students) could talk about how innocent and naive the little seventh graders were.

With four years ahead of them, they had to band together to uphold their prestige in the school. Although too young for high school clubs, the eighth graders turned toward their own ball teams as an activity outlet.

Seventh Grade works toward tomorrow's future

They began the year the same as any other class. Five different groups from five different schools with five more years to become one. They made spirit, won friends, and adjusted to new classes. They had lockers just for them (which they also had to learn to get unstuck). It was their first chance to try out for activities. FC's future seniors were sponsored by Mrs. Peery, Miss Haltom, Mr. and Mrs. Fuller, and Mr. Dean.

The drawing of a map of the world proves very enticing for the seventh grade social studies class
